U. S. Court Rules Cities Can't Stop Bill Distribution

Roberts in Opinion Asserts Ban Strikes at Heart of Liberties as Provided in Constitution

Gives Fraud Rule

Frauds, Trespasses He Says May Be Punished as Laws Provide

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—The supreme court held today that a municipal ordinance requiring a "censorship through license which makes impossible the free and unhampered distribution of pamphlets strikes at the very heart of the constitutional guarantees."

This assertion was made by Justice Roberts in an opinion holding unconstitutional three municipal ordinances prohibiting the distribution of handbills on the streets, and a fourth ordinance prohibiting the canvassing of homes for the sale of booklets, without first obtaining a permit from the chief of police. Justice McReynolds dissented.

The ordinance prohibiting canvassing was applied by Irvington, N. J. Those prohibiting the distribution of handbills and circulars were passed by Milwaukee, Los Angeles and Worcester, Mass.

"Conceding," Roberts said, "that fraudulent appeals may be made in the name of charity and religion, we hold a municipality cannot, for this reason, require all who wish to disseminate ideas to present them first to police authorities for their consideration and approval, with a discretion in the police to say some ideas may while others may not be carried to the homes of citizens; some persons may, while others may not disseminate information from house to house."

"Frauds may be denounced as offenses and punished by law. Trespasses may similarly be forbidden."

"It is said that these means are less efficient and convenient than bestowal of power on police authorities to decide what information may be disseminated from house to house, and who may impart the information, the answer is that considerations of this sort do not empower a municipality to abridge freedom of speech and press."

Noting that attorneys had claimed the handbill ordinance were intended to prevent littering of the streets, Justice Roberts said:

"We are of opinion that the purpose to keep the streets clean and of good appearance is insufficient to justify an ordinance which prohibits a person rightfully on a public street from handing literature to one willing to receive it."

"This constitutional protection does not deprive a city of all power to prevent street littering," Roberts continued. "There are obvious methods of preventing littering. Amongst these is the punishment of those who actually throw papers on the streets."

Refers to Ordinance

Referring to the Irvington ordinance, Roberts concluded: "We are not to be taken as holding that commercial soliciting and canvassing may not be subjected to such regulation as the ordinance requires. Nor do we hold that the town may not fix reasonable hours when canvassing may be done by persons having such objects as the petitioner (Miss Clara Schneider)."

"Doubtless there are other features of such activities which may be regulated in the public interest without prior licensing or other invasion of constitutional liberty. We do hold, however, that the ordinance in question, as applied to the petitioner's conduct, is void, and she cannot be punished for acting without a permit."

One Way to Help

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 22 (AP)—Nine members of the Stackpole family, hunting in woods near here, took no chances with strangers. Other hunters were startled to find large printed signs tacked to trees in the vicinity reading: "Don't shoot, it may be a Stackpole."

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 22 (AP)—Clifton Hosier advertised two shotguns for sale. Two hunters came to his house, paid a dollar apiece on the guns and took them away to "try them out." They haven't come back yet.

Phinney, Leonard And Boss Elevated

Retirement Letter Pending Two and One-Half Years; Phinney Is Selected as Acting Chief

After serving as chief of police of the Kingston police department for the past 31 years, J. Allen Wood will retire on a pension of half pay the last of the month. His resignation, dated Tuesday, was accepted with regret at the monthly meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners that evening at the city hall.

Lieutenant Charles Phinney was named acting chief of police at a salary of $2,900; Sergeant Ernest A. Boss was appointed acting lieutenant at a salary of $2,375, and Patrolman William J. Leonard was named acting sergeant at a salary of $2,120.

While Lieutenant Phinney was named acting chief and Sergeant Boss acting lieutenant by the police board, the board also decided to ask the Municipal Civil Service Commission to certify their names for temporary appointment, and to hold an examination for the position of sergeant.

Retirement Pending

Chief Wood's resignation last evening did not come as an unexpected surprise for he had filed his resignation for retirement two and a half years, ago but the resignation was put aside at that time. Since then Chief Wood had again given the matter of returning from active police duty considerable thought and decided to again renew his application for retirement.

The resignation filed by Chief Wood last night with the board asked that he be relieved of active duty on November 30. In accepting the resignation the board retired him on a pension of $1,625, which under the police pension rules is based on half of his annual salary of $3,250.

Adopts Resolution

The police board in accepting the chief's resignation adopted a resolution reading in part as follows: "That the Board of Police Commissioners in granting the retirement of Chief of Police J. Allan Wood does it with the utmost reluctance and regret. We cannot, however, allow his retirement to pass without some mention of our gratitude for the wise and effective service he has given to the department for the past 31 years."

"This board keenly realizes the great loss it will sustain in no longer being able to enjoy his broad experience, good judgement and wise counsel which has proved valuable to the department."

"We regret the loss of such a courageous and trusted chief of police where personal charm was interwoven with a quiet strength based on ability and fineness of feeling for his fellow officers which has contributed to the present high standard of the department."

"We delight to do you honor and to wish you good health and a long and enjoyable life which you are justly deserving of."

Chief's Long Record

When the Kingston police department was organized on May 15, 1891, the late Stephen D. Hood was appointed the first police chief of Kingston serving until his death on June 4, 1908, a period of 17 years.

Chief Wood was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Chief Hood and assumed his duties as head of the police department on July 7, 1908, serving continuously since that time.

Chief Wood, who is 63 years old, was born in Exopus, and has been a resident of Kingston practically all his life. At the time of the Spanish-American War he was employed by the old Kingston Gas & Electric Company, and was a member of old Company M. At the outbreak of the war he volunteered and was mustered in as a sergeant and with the other members of old Company M was assigned to duty in Hawaii. At the close of the war he returned to Kingston and was mustered out of service on February 18, 1899, and re-entered the employ of the gas company, where he worked until 1902, when he entered the employ of the Peckham Manufacturing Company.

The chief by hard work and diligent effort worked his way up through the ranks until he held the position as superintendent of the plant. At one time when the plant was operating to capacity the chief was in charge of 350 men who were employed by the concern.

Appointed by Crane

At the time of the death of Chief Hood, Walter P. Crane was mayor of the city, and he induced Chief Wood to accept the position of chief of police.

Chief Wood accepted and since

Fate of Landmark to Be Considered

Official sanction by the Ulster County Board of Supervisors of a proposal to acquire additional space for county office facilities, will mean the end of one of Kingston's famous landmarks, the former Eagle Hotel. The proposal, it is expected, will be submitted only for consideration of a supervisors' committee, probably at a meeting this evening. The committee will report later as to whether or not the plan is acceptable. The property to be involved in the deal, if it goes through, is that on which the Eagle Hotel building now stands, the annex next to it and the building now housing the Hardenbergh Furniture Company. The other two buildings shown in the immediate foreground of the picture above will not be involved in the transaction.

Kuhn Has Several Bad Moments While Love Note Is Read

Bundfuhrer Shows Scarlet Face to Courtroom as 'Joke' Letter Gets Public Airing

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, respected fuhrer of the German-American Bund, blushed scarlet today when the prosecution depicted him as a shipboard Romeo and read a love note he wrote to his "heaven sent" woman friend, Mrs. Florence Camp.

Spectators uttered, while Kuhn's cheeks reddened and his eyes blazed with anger, as Prosecutor Herman J. McCarthy read the letter at the Bund leader's trial on larceny charges. "Florence," it said, "I am terrible in love with you—I beg you to become my beloved wife—I will always be real true to you and will love you forever—can't be without you any more because I realize heaven did send you—and I never will forget that." (Signed) Fritz.

Kuhn, who already has a wife, had denied just a few seconds earlier that he proposed to Mrs. Camp during an ocean cruise on the steamship Westerland.

Too Much a Lady

"Mrs. Camp was too much a lady to listen to proposals of marriage within four days on board," he said.

McCarthy then produced the note, which brought a protest from Kuhn that it was "all in fun."

"It was done the night of a ship party," Kuhn said. "Everybody does that sort of thing."

McCarthy's continued delving into the Bundfuhrer's romantic life finally impelled Judge James G. Wallace to question Kuhn himself in bald terms.

"Did you ever have a love affair with Mrs. Camp?" the court asked. Kuhn pulled back as though horrified. "No, I did not," he said. "Mrs. Camp is very much a lady. I am still on very friendly terms with her."

Earlier, the prosecution elicited testimony that Kuhn was a man of many aliases. Kuhn acknowledged that at various times he had been known as Fred Costan, Fred Kellar, Henry Larson, and Frank Carson.

The reason for the aliases was not gone into.

McCarthy also went into Kuhn's employment in the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit and the reason for his leaving that job.

"I was transferred," Kuhn said.

Eskimos Starving, Alaskans Report

Off-Shore Winds Stopping Hunters From Getting Supply of Meats

Barrow, Alaska, Nov. 22 (AP)—Eskimos of this farthest north outpost had no juicy walrus meat nor even an abundance of the usually-plentiful whale or seal meat in their ice cellars today as they prepared for a bleak Thanksgiving Day of prayer and feasting on freshly-killed polar bear.

Up here, where turkey is unknown, the Eskimos ask nothing better for a holiday feast than walrus meat. But hunger has come to many of the native families and more than half of the Eskimos' dogs have died of starvation or have been killed.

Summer and fall weather (strong offshore winds drove the ice from the northern beach in early July, and it didn't return till mid-October) has robbed the Eskimos of their hunting on the ice for walrus.

Even the reindeer supply has dwindled to less than half what it was three years ago. Numerous wolf packs rival the natives in the food quest by killing off 20 to 30 reindeer on almost nightly raids.

The Municipal Auditorium has been turned into an attractive ball room for the annual show and dance of the Congregation Ahavath Israel tonight.

Members of the decorating committee put the finishing touches on to their work for the annual social event, which should be one of the outstanding affairs of the season, according to the program.

Featuring the ball is Bunny Berigan's swing orchestra and a lineup of radio and stage celebrities, tops in the entertainment world, who will be introduced by Harry Hershfield, popular newspaper cartoonist, as master of ceremonies.

One of the largest crowds ever seen at the auditorium is expected to be present tonight for the charitable event for Ahavath Israel Congregation. Tickets have been selling at a very encouraging rate and indications are that those who want choice seats will have to be on hand early.

The doors will open at 7.15 o'clock. There will be musical

Italian Steamer Is Mined and German Freighter Is Captured; Police Hold Anglo Agents

(By The Associated Press)

Mounting maritime losses and recriminations over the foiled Munich plot on Adolf Hitler's life further embittered today the warfare between Germany and Britain.

An Italian steamer struck a mine off the English coast where more than 10 ships, including five neutrals, have gone down in the past five days.

The German freighter Bertha Fisser fell prey to a British warship near Iceland.

These new casualties were added to the list of 15 which mines and submarines have destroyed since last Thursday, a quick increase which spurred Britain to retaliatory measures against Germany.

Britain accused Germans of losing the mines which caused heavy losses near the English coast, but the charge was denied in Berlin.

In retaliation Prime Minister Chamberlain announced a blockade of all German exports to choke the Reich's trade. Most imports already were banned by the British contraband control imposed at the war's outset.

Counter-Retaliation

Berlin declared the British measure was certain to bring

Board Gets Resolution At Session

County Attorney Has Resolution Which Will Ask Matter Be Studied

Price Is Factor

Elsworth Says Figure Asked Suggests Good Investment

A report which has been current for some time to the effect that the county of Ulster may give consideration to an offer to purchase the former Eagle Hotel property on Main street and the adjoining Eagle Hotel annex building, together with the office building next the county clerk's office which now houses the Hardenbergh Co. furniture store, was confirmed this morning by County Attorney Roscoe V. Elsworth.

County Attorney Elsworth stated that for some time there had been a movement on foot among citizens and also members of the board of supervisors relative to the county taking over the property at a very attractive figure from the Ulster County Savings Institution, which acquired the property at mortgage foreclosure.

Prepares Resolution

In order that the offer which has been made for the purchase of the property may officially come before the board, County Attorney Elsworth stated he had prepared a resolution which will be presented to the board this evening, asking that a committee be appointed to investigate the proposition and the advisability of the county taking title to the property. In order that the matter may thoroughly be gone into Chairman Robert A. Snyder will be asked to appoint a committee to make a thorough investigation of the proposition and determine whether it is to the best interest of the county to take over the property.

Mr. Elsworth said that from such reports as had come to him, the price which has been quoted on the property seemed to make it very desirable from an investment standpoint if nothing else.

There is need for additional space for the surrogate's court, additional space is needed for the county clerk's office and in the two office buildings which adjoin the hotel property would be sufficient space to house other county departments which are now in leased quarters. The office buildings which adjoin the county clerk's office could be converted into suitable quarters at a very nominal cost.

The plan would be to raze the old Eagle Hotel building and provide much needed parking space to take cars off the streets in the congested business area during business hours.

To Name Committee

County Attorney Elsworth said that the action to be taken this evening was simply to appoint a committee under the resolution which would be offered, and that committee would be authorized to investigate the offer and determine whether it was advisable from a business standpoint to acquire the property.

It has been rumored for some time that the Ulster County Savings Institution had made an offer to the county for purchase of the buildings which were acquired by the bank in foreclosure proceedings. Since the bank acquired the Eagle Hotel property the hotel has been vacant. The store on the lower floor of the four-story annex was occupied for a time but also has been vacant for several months.

No announcement of the price asked has been made but it is understood that it is a very attractive offer.

At present the County of Ulster leases quarters on Fair street for the Motor Vehicle Bureau offices, a suite of rooms in the Warren building on Fair street for G. D. B. Hasbrouck, official referee, and also quarters in the Ulster County Savings Institution building on Wall street to house the Home Bureau.

All of these departments now housed in leased quarters could be housed in the two office buildings adjoining the County Clerk's office and the old Eagle Hotel building could be razed and the large lot used for a free parking space which is badly needed in the up-town shopping center. Located within a block of the shopping center the lot would be a great asset to local business and would care for a large number of cars which now are unable to find parking space in the John street parking lot which is county owned.

JOHN T. LOUGHRAN

State Democrats to Endorse, Support John Loughran For Appointment to Fill U. S. Supreme Court Vacancy

Justice John T. Loughran of this city, who is a justice of the New York State Court of Appeals, will receive the endorsement and support of the New York State Democratic committee for the appointment to the United States Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice Pierce Butler on November 16.

It is understood that the local Democratic headquarters is working with the state department in compiling Justice Loughran's biography for presentation to President Roosevelt.

Justice Loughran is a lifetime resident of Ulster county. He was born in this city February 23, 1889, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Loughran. He was graduated from Kingston Academy in 1907, being president of his class and leader of the debating team. During 1907 and 1908 and in vacation time during 1909 and 1910 he was a reporter on the Kingston Daily Freeman.

He was educated in the law at Fordham Law School in the years 1908-11, and following his graduation was made a professor of the law there, and served with distinction a total of 18 years, winning wide renown as a teacher of law. Thousands of successful lawyers have been his students.

In 1925 Fordham conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Law.

He edited Cases on Contracts of Judge William A. Keener, who was Story Professor of Harvard and was later Dean of Columbia Law School. This treatise is a standard book of instruction and has been adopted by over 20 American law schools. He also published a case book on Evidence, which is now used as standard in a number of law schools.

In 1930 Justice Loughran was elected to the New York State Supreme Court and subsequently was appointed to the Court of Appeals.

Last Day of School for 45,000

Toledo Board, Broke, Recesses Until January 2

Toledo, O., Nov. 22 (AP)—This was the last day of school until January 2 for 45,000 Toledo children.

Financially embarrassed, the school board closed classes for six weeks to save expenses, including $400,000 in $1,300 teachers' salaries.

"Most of the pupils are greatly disappointed at the closing," observed Superintendent E. L. Bowsher. E. E. Evans, board of education president, added:

"They are not making jokes about it, as one might expect. Many have told us 'We hope the schools will reopen soon.' We join them in that hope."

Voters' rejection of an operating levy led to the board's decision. Recreational and church groups were arranging activities designed to keep youngsters out of mischief.

Despite critical financial conditions in other localities, Ohio is not threatened with any widespread closing of schools, State Director of Education E. J. Dietrich said. Rural schools in Madison township, Ashtabula county, also closed today to January 10. The Cleveland board of education will decide Friday whether to close to avoid a deficit of more than $1,000,000. Explaining the schools' difficulties, Dr. Dietrich said boards of education should learn to live within their income.

Fire This Morning Destroys West Park House

A fire of undetermined origin levelled a one-story frame house on the property of August Garibaldi at West Park early this morning. Flames spread to the charred remains of another house which partially burned last spring. Shown above are pictures taken by a Freeman photographer at the scene of the fire this morning. A general view at the top shows what is left of both structures, while the other shows the smoldering remains of what was left to burn on the other building previously damaged. Three small outbuildings were saved mainly by the fact that a north wind carried the flames away from them. Some furniture in the house which burned today was owned by the Tucker family, who moved most of their furniture out last Sunday.

for representing yourself as a doctor?"

Judge Wallace declined to allow an answer "to such a collateral matter."

In a subsequent attempt to question Kuhn's credibility, McCarthy went into Kuhn's application for jury service in January this year.

Kuhn testified he registered for the 1938 election from a Jackson Heights, Queens, address.

McCarthy then introduced a copy of Kuhn's juror application, showing that he registered from 178 East 25th street, New York city.

The heavy-jowled fuchrer, on trial charged with misappropriation of funds, denied he ever told Mrs. Camp he had divorced his wife and that she was living in Germany.

counter-retaliation from Germany. Unaccounted light was thrown on the conflict of plot and counter-plot between secret agents by a German announcement of the seizure of two British secret operatives and the arrest of a Munich man for the November 8 bomb attempt on Hitler's life.

The announcement said the man, Georg Elser, had confessed setting the explosive which killed eight persons soon after Hitler had left the Munich beer hall.

Though the captive Britons were not linked specifically with the assassination plot, they were accused of organizing attempts to overthrow the Nazi regime. The two men were captured trying to enter Germany from the Netherlands, said the German announcement.

The Britain foreign office denied that Britain had any knowledge of Elser and said there was no connection between the bombing and the capture of the two Britons.

The war remained quiescent on the western front, where France said there was "nothing important to report during the night."

Germany said scouting flights over the British Isles had cost one plane. The British announced yesterday that a German raider had been shot down during a day which saw the penetration of enemy aircraft on scouting flights over several parts of the United Kingdom.

Three Parcels
The property consists in reality of three parcels of land, one occupied by the Eagle Hotel building which is a three story brick structure in bad repair, the adjoining Eagle Hotel annex building, a four-story brick building in a good state of repair and the three story building next to the county clerk's office which is occupied on the ground floor by the Hardenberg Company furniture store and offices above. The Eagle Hotel lot itself is a large one extending from the drive-way at the easterly end of the hotel building next to the building occupied by the Colonial Beauty Shop and back half way through to Pearl street where it joins the property of The Huntington and also the St. James M. E. Church property. At the rear of the hotel building is a considerable vacant lot now. With the hotel building razed there would be space to care for a large number of cars.

For some time there has been talk of erecting at some future time a modern county building to house the various county offices which have gradually outgrown their present quarters. Adjoining the present historical county clerk's office at Fair and Main streets, the property would give ample room for future expansion. Meanwhile the present structures next to the county clerk's office could be used to house county offices which are now located in rented space.

Garibaldi House Burns at 7 A. M.; Origin Unknown

A one-story frame house, owned by August Garibaldi of West Park, was destroyed by a fire which broke out at about 7 o'clock this morning. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

The house, which was down a slope to the rear of the inn operated by Mr. Garibaldi, was unoccupied at the time, its former occupants having moved out most of their furniture last Sunday.

A small shed and the charred remains of an adjacent house which burned last spring also were levelled as the flames were swept by a steady north wind.

Mr. Garibaldi said this morning that part of the furniture of the Tucker family, who had just moved out of the house, was in the building when it burned. A small garage to the rear of the house and two other out buildings were not destroyed, but the house itself was levelled by the fire.

Efforts of Mr. Garibaldi and neighbors to check the fire were futile, since it had gained too much headway when discovered. The nearest fire companies are those of Highland and Fort Ewen, but neither could have been of any help in checking the fire.

The house was along the road leading to the former Broglio inn only a short distance from the Garibaldi inn, which faces Route 9-W. The structure which burned last spring was just a few feet south of the building destroyed this morning.

Mr. Garibaldi said the house was insured but did not state the amount of his loss.

The one and only way to discourage this pest of door bell ringers is to firmly, in a few words—one will do—refuse to buy from them.

When it no longer pays to ring door bells the ringers will stop ringing.

Whatever the peddler has to offer, some Kingston merchant also has it or will get it for you, and if the article is not satisfactory, you know where to find the merchant.

Do you know where to find the peddler?

Steel Radio Tower Here Is Completed

The 170-foot radio tower for the Kingston Broadcasting Co. has been completed on Yarmouth street back of the Krause property off Albany avenue extension and it is expected that the local station WKNY will be on the air early in December. Erected by expert steel workers, the tower attracts considerable attention at night with its numerous red lights which serve as warning markers for aeroplanes. Department of Commerce regulations require that all such structures be marked at night.

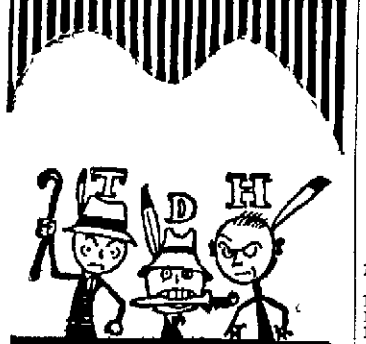

John R. McKenna, president of the company, expects to have the transmitter house completed and studios ready for broadcasting early next month. The transmitter house will be erected at the site of the radio tower. This work is being done by the L. I. Schoonmaker Construction Company and Clyde J. DuBois. Plans for the studio in the Governor Clinton Hotel are being arranged. Ezra McIntosh, program director for station WKNY at Asheville, N. C., for the past five and a half years and prior to that connected with the NBC in New York city, will be program director of the local station.

Discordant Note
Newark, N. J.—Patrolman Raymond Howler shattered the harmony of the Newark police band. Rehearsing for a concert, the band practiced an extra hour. When 15 of the musicians went to their cars they found them ticketed by Patrolman Howler for overtime parking.

Opportunists
St. Louis—Mayor Dickmann's efforts to inject realism into a safety campaign by placing wrecked automobiles at six street intersections may necessitate an anti-theft campaign. Thieves have removed wheels, horns and other accessories from several of the cars.

Stab in the Dark
Kansas City—Ballard M. Collins, 40, rested his elbow on the arm of his movies seat. His neighbor shoved it off, struck Collins in the chest and departed. A few minutes later Collins noticed his shirt was wet. He discovered he had been stabbed twice. He was treated in a doctor's office.

It's Okay Now
Omaha, Neb.—An Omaha cleaning concern received a letter and $12.15. It read: "Several years ago I collected from you the enclosed $12.15 for what I then considered a damaged rug. I no longer feel that way about it, so am returning the same."

Seven Bucks, Net
Des Moines, Ia.—Henry D. Hudson enjoyed paying a $3 traffic fine because he was really $7 ahead. "I didn't see the school stop sign," he said, "but just as the traffic officer drove away after giving me the summons, I saw a $10 bill lying in the street beside the car." The patrolman said he had not lost any money.

THANKFUL AMERICA

An English visitor in this country wrote to the New York Times of his enthusiasm about our democracy and patriotism, which he had found so "infectious" that he was seeking citizenship. At the end of his complimentary letter he said:

"A trip to Europe—even in peacetime—would make the citizens of this country even more thankful than I think they are for being Americans."

We should not need that trip to make us thankful. We have learned a good deal about Europe and about ourselves in recent years. We know that we are at peace while many nations are at war, or threatened with war. We know that we are citizens in a country which is trying to get more food to more people, and not in a land where ration cards are necessary for food and clothing. We know that we have innumerable causes for thankfulness and thanksgiving.

Counting our blessings should not be a smug process, or a selfish one. There is too much of poverty, ignorance and injustice in America today to let any of us pretend that our democracy is perfect or our blessings uniformly distributed.

While giving thanks for the good things we enjoy, we would do well to add thanksgiving for the opportunity we have to correct mistakes, right wrongs, express grievances and work for the greater good and happiness of all of us.

BELL RINGERS

The "Bell Ringing Salesmen" are at it again. And the complaint of the housewives against these house-to-house peddlers is justifiable.

Within the past several weeks, housewives have been called away from their work by the persistent clamoring of the door bell, only to find there a peddler who insists upon selling them an article at an "introductory price." These articles that are offered by the plausible and smooth so-called salesmen can be purchased in local stores and are of better quality and the cost is no higher. But the big difference is the fact that your local merchant stands squarely behind everything that he sells you, while the bell ringer is here today and away tomorrow.

Many housewives, who have had to drop their housework to listen to a line of chatter, have made purchases from one or more of these various types of "bell ringers" only to get rid of them. But why encourage them? Make up your mind not to be victimized by these smooth, persistent peddlers, and turn them away.

Your local merchant is endeavoring to render you a better service, but he must have your wholehearted support.

The beneficial effect of buying from your home town merchant is apparent. Local people find jobs at home and spend their money at home. All business enterprises in the community benefit as trade increases. New businesses are started and old ones grow. New sources of taxation appear, and local purchasing power expands. Property owners find ready tenants at good rentals.

The greatest possible encouragement to the bell ringing salesman is the purchasing of articles from them. Buy from your local merchant who has a wide selection of quality goods at reasonable prices and who deserves your support.

NO WAR ISOLATION

The neutral nations in the combat zone of the war in Europe are unhappy about the American neutrality act. It has injured their normal commerce with the United States, which amounted in some instances to scores of millions of dollars. Their ports are already suffering from the absence of our ships and the goods they would carry.

Ireland, Belgium and the Scandinavian countries have expressed their anxiety and urged that some way be found to permit access to them in spite of their nearness to the war. Iceland is preparing to act as a link between the United States and the northern European neutrals. Our own shipping interests, exporters and seamen are equally troubled about their financial future.

Meanwhile Australia, needing to conserve dollar exchange, has adopted a policy of rationed imports from the United States. The plan is to cut its purchase of our oil one-fourth, and severely to restrict buying in other lines such as tobacco, automobile bodies, luxury apparel, foodstuffs and patent medicines, normally large items in Australian trade with us. The war goods Australia buys may not compensate for these cuts for months or even years.

Many countries can stay out of war and so avoid its most disastrous effects, but none can enjoy complete safety and isolation.

A PARK IN THE PRESENT

The city of Cincinnati will benefit from the sensible handling of an eccentric bequest. A woman who died several years ago left an estate to the city on the Ohio River with the provision that the income be invested and left intact for five hundred years. At that remote date Cincinnati was to receive the principal and accrued interest and use it for the city's children.

Relatives contested the will. Cincinnati decided to settle for a sum considerably less than the astronomical figure which, theoretically, would be available five centuries hence. With the $196,426 agreed upon, the city plans to build a new river-front playground and public park for children of the current century.

It would be a daring seer indeed who would confidently predict the value of such an investment at the end of 500 years, or who would even guarantee the principal to a beneficiary, let alone accumulated interest in excess of all the money coined or in circulation today.

A park for the present generation is more appealing, and doubtless more valuable, than the dream of fortune in an unforeseeable future.

Enough energy to govern the country is used up in presidential pre-election campaigns, and there's as much money and effort spent in grooming a candidate as in rearing a crown prince.

Maybe it's no more than right that there should be two Thanksgivings this year, with the business upturn and our escape from war.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

ACUTE OR CHRONIC HEAD COLD

When a cold attacks the pharynx (back of nose and throat), it is called pharyngitis; if it extends farther back or down to the larynx (vocal cords), it is called laryngitis; if it gets into the bronchial tubes it is bronchitis, and if it gets into the very fine air tubes in the lungs, it is pneumonia.

The thought then is that while it is the same cold, the fact that it gets deeper and deeper into the chest, it becomes a more and more serious condition, must be remembered.

Someone has likened this to spilling some water in the front vestibule of the home; the water runs down the hall to the dining room and then to the kitchen. It is on the same floor and on the same level.

However, as the water leaves the vestibule it may also run into the sitting room that runs off the hall. The sitting room of the home may be compared to the sinuses adjoining the nose and throat. The floor of the mouth, throat and nose—the mucous membrane—is the same as the floor or mucous membrane of the sinuses. The mucous membrane or lining of the sinuses is an out-pouching of the lining of the nose and throat. These sinuses form a sounding box for the voice, so that if anything obstructs the air going into these sinuses, the mucous membrane or lining is irritated or disturbed, becomes thickened, and the voice becomes flat. The little cells of the lining of the sinuses manufacture an excess of liquid when irritated just as does any irritated surface—eye, intestine, nose. The thickening of this liquid is the mucus that drops down from sinus to back of throat.

Dr. J. Harley Harris, Memphis, in Mississippi Doctor, says:

"The symptoms of acute sinusitis (inflammation of the sinus) are those of an acute head cold, with tenderness over the sinus. The three cardinal or outstanding symptoms of chronic sinusitis are: (1) dropping or dripping of mucus into throat; (2) chronic inflammation of pharynx (back of throat); (3) chronic or frequent attacks of laryngitis."

The treatment consists of removing the cause—diseased teeth and tonsils, enlarged adenoids, badly bent septum (partition between nostrils). At one time oils were used to soften or shrink the lining of the sinuses, but today ordinary salt solutions—a half teaspoonful of table salt to a glass of warm water—put up into the nose with a dropper is more often used. Adrenalin (epinephrine) and ephedrine in "drops," sprays, or ointment, are most effective in shrinking the lining membrane and allowing the air to ventilate the sinuses.

NEW HURLEY

New Hurley, Nov. 21—Mrs. John Chase of New Paltz spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. DuBois of New Paltz were callers at the home of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Perry DuBois, one afternoon last week.

Mrs. B. B. Wright and Miss Mazie Palmeter of Ireland Corners and Miss Myra Wright of New York spent Sunday afternoon with relatives in this place. The Rev. John W. Tyse, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Wilkin, Mrs. Gerow Wilkin and Miss Bertha Sutton attended the Ulster County Sunday School convention at the Congregational Church in Saugerties on Friday evening of last week. The Rev. Mr. Tyse had charge of a discussion group. There will be special Thanksgiving services in the New Hurley Church on Wednesday evening of this week at 8 o'clock. Subject, The Hymn of Thanksgiving, An Anthem of Praise. A special offering will be received for the missionary work of the church. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord."

There will be regular preaching services in the New Hurley Church next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Sunday School at 10:30. A rare musical treat is in store for this congregation and their friends on Sunday evening, December 3, when the choir of the West End Presbyterian Church of Englewood, N. J., will present its Christmas music in the New Hurley Church at 8 o'clock. This choir is under the personal direction of Donald Winter of Westminster Choir School of Princeton. The Missionary Society is sponsoring this event, and a special offering for missions will be invited to attend.

The ladies of the Missionary Society are going to pack a Christmas box of new kitchen tools and utensils for the Kentucky Mountain Mission stations. All members of the church are invited to share in this gift, and presents may be left with any of the members of the Missionary Society prior to December 14.

Many factories are now painting machinery in colors to contrast with the materials being fabricated. In addition, walls are being decorated with soft colors which cut down glare and rest the eyes. Danger spots are being painted a vivid red to warn the eye that caution is required.

After-Effects of Cash and Carry Neutrality Now Being Felt In This Country

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 22.—Strange after-effects of the cash and carry neutrality law are now being felt. Thus, the British and French governments are maintaining a deposit account with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for a large part of their clearance of checks for purchases in this country. While, in peace-time, this is an unobjectionable way to clear transactions for foreign governments and their central banks, the fact that a quasi-governmental institution in America has begun to assume some of the functions of a fiscal agent has developed criticism.

It is no part of the duty of a neutral government to facilitate the handling of war supplies of either belligerent. Even the transfer of registry of American ships to other neutral flags, though wholly legal, has been frowned upon here. Yet, at the same moment, the administration is permitting the biggest of the Federal Reserve Banks, which is really the operating center of the Federal Reserve system, to do some of the things which commercial banks are supposed to do.

The reason for designating the New York Federal Reserve Bank is undoubtedly to meet another kind of criticism, namely that fiscal agents made money out of the last war. Various reports are current that President Roosevelt himself informally vetoed the plan of the allies to use private banking houses in New York to act as purchasing agents or fiscal depositaries.

Thus, in order to stave off one kind of criticism, the administration has permitted itself to be drawn into another. There would be, incidentally, no unneutrality in allowing any American banking firm to make a brokerage fee, but there are a good many international law precedents which indicate very clearly that a neutral government should not touch the financial transactions of a belligerent.

It is true that the law prohibits credits by private banks to foreign governments, but there is nothing in the law to prevent foreign companies from keeping deposits in the American banks, or purchasing to be done directly by British corporations through American banks. The commercial banks of the United States are in a much better position to aid American producers and to keep them in touch with the flow of orders so they may gear their production accordingly than are the usually secretive Federal Reserve Banks. To confine the fiscal operations of all purchasers on behalf of the British and French governments to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York introduces a new form of competition which has never contemplated when the Federal Reserve Act was passed.

The present arrangement may, of course, be temporary, but it is suspected here that let the Washington is afraid to let the New York banks perform their normal functions in assisting foreign purchases. When Congress reconvenes in January, however, there may be questions raised as to why the Federal Reserve Banks are in any way assisting the belligerent governments in maintaining accounts for them in the United States.

Strictly speaking, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York does not act as purchasing agent for any foreign government, but the close relationship that is inevitable as between the Federal Reserve Board and the belligerent governments when the Reserve Bank in New York is being used as a depository may open up new questions of whether the spirit, if not the letter, of the neutrality law is not being violated by such operations.

Famous American Series
 The long-awaited series honoring these Americans who have won fame by other pursuits than politics and soldiering will be released soon. Meanwhile Postmaster General Farley has revealed these details:

Each of the seven groups of five each—artists, authors, composers, educators, inventors, poets and scientists—will have 1, 2, 3, 5, and 10-cent stamps.

The lowest value in each group will go to the person in the group that was born first—and the rest will follow in chronological order. Thus among the authors, Washington Irving (born in 1783) will be on the 1-cent stamp, and Samuel Clemens (born in 1835) will be on the 10.

Here is the complete list, by states, of the postoffices selected for first day sales of stamps in the series:

Alabama—Tuskegee Institute, Booker T. Washington, educator; California—Santa Rosa, Luther Burbank, scientist; District of Columbia—Washington, John Philip Sousa, composer; Dr. Walter Reed, scientist; Georgia—Jefferson, Dr. Crawford W. Long, scientist; Savannah, Eli Whitney, inventor; Illinois—Chicago, Jane Addams, scientist; Evanston, Frances Willard, educator; Indiana—Greenfield, James Whitcomb Riley, poet; Kentucky—Bardonia, Stephen Collins Foster, composer; Louisiana—St. Francisville, John James Audubon, scientist; Massachusetts—Haverhill, John Greenleaf Whittier, poet; Cambridge, Henry W. FDR's Own Family Is Snared When Father Tinkers Calendar

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP).—About half the country will observe Thanksgiving Day tomorrow, but the confusion which followed President Roosevelt's decision to advance the customary date has extended right into his own family.

The chief executive and the first lady will have their turkey dinner tomorrow night at the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation for infantile paralysis patients. Some of their children, however, will observe both tomorrow's holiday and the one proclaimed by governors in some states for November 30.

James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, will celebrate in New York tomorrow and then go to Massachusetts, which has selected the traditional last Thursday in November. Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt also will have their turkey at Nahant, Mass., on the "second Thanksgiving."

Both Thursdays

The governor of Texas proclaimed both Thursdays as a holiday, so Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt will have two dinners at their ranch near Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., will have turkey tomorrow at their cottage in Charlottesville, Va., but next week they will have guests for Thanksgiving recess of the University of Virginia.

The President's daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger of Seattle, will follow her father's example and observe only the "first Thanksgiving."

Political affiliations apparently had nothing to do with the decisions on Thanksgiving celebrations in the 48 states this year.

Five Republican governors decided to observe President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving in their states, but 12 held to the old date. Seventeen Democrats chose the new date, 11 the old. Nearly all the governors said they would proclaim November 21 instead of November 28 next year, when difficulties in advancing the date could be eliminated.

Democratic Gov. Hugh White of Mississippi chose November 23 this year, but state law made the last Thursday a legal holiday also. Republican Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado followed the majority of his party in proclaiming November 30, but state law required also that the President's day be observed.

The year 1939 will be remembered by potato growers as one of the driest on record.

THANKSGIVING DAY

ALL DAY REDUCTIONS on Long Distance TELEPHONE CALLS

This year Thanksgiving Day in some states is being observed on November 23rd — in others, on November 30th.

So the Bell System announces all-day reductions on Long Distance calls — on which the station-to-station day rate is 40¢ or more — made on either of the days, between any points within the United States, one of which is observing the holiday. For example, the official day in New York State is Nov. 23.

Again, on Nov. 30th, you can enjoy these same reductions on calls to any state that is celebrating Thanksgiving on that day. New York Telephone Company.

THANKSGIVING IS A FINE DAY TO CALL THE FOLKS BACK HOME

THANKSGIVING

MANY years ago on the rugged New England coast the Pilgrims ceased their labors for a day to give thanks for that which they had received.

The spirit of that first Thanksgiving still lives and once again we pause.

Here in the Central Hudson Valley this company and its cooperating appliance dealers feel that they have contributed, in a measure, to the enjoyment of this home day by many people. We feel proud of the DAILY SAVINGS PLAN, the simple financing plan by which thousands of families have come to possess modern appliances, thereby adding much to the comfort and convenience of their homes.

The DAILY SAVINGS PLAN is expressly designed for families with limited incomes. For a few nickels a day you may have the appliances of your choice—a refrigerator, an up-to-the-minute range or an automatic water heater—paying for them as you use them, by depositing nickels in a savings device attached to the appliance.

Thus, up and down the streets on this day before Thanksgiving, many a refrigerator holds a turkey and all the fixin's waiting for the morrow to be popped into an oven while an automatic hot water heater stands by ready to make things easy for the cook!

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess waste and poisons out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty urination with smarting and burning sometimes shows there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Accord, Nov. 22—Through an exchange of pulpits for Sunday November 26, the Rev. Russell Damstra of Kingston will preach at the Rochester Reformed Church at 10:30 a. m.

The Communion of the Lord's Supper will be commemorated at the Rochester Reformed Church on Sunday, December 3, at 10:30 o'clock.

Fred Jack injured his hand while chopping wood at his home Saturday.

Percy Gazlay is digging a new well on his property.

Howard Anderson is demolishing the buildings on his corner property, formerly occupied by William Schuler.

Several from this place attended the fourth quarterly conference of the Newburgh District at the Stone Ridge Methodist Church on Sunday evening, November 19. The Rev. Mr. McDonald, presiding elder, delivered the address of the evening.

Mrs. Lloyd Barley accompanied by Mrs. Rance Smith and Mrs. Edgar Van Vleet enjoyed an auto trip through the Wallkill Valley Wednesday, November 15. They enjoyed dinner in Newburgh.

Mrs. Clyde Roosa, primary teacher in Accord grade school, who was injured in an auto accident Monday evening, is resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sahler and family are planning to leave for Florida in a few days.

The young people's minstrel will be presented in the Odd Fellows' Hall Wednesday evening, November 29, at 8 o'clock. Roger Baer Schwartz of Kingston, assisted by Melvina Barley and Vincent Mikalonis, will have charge of the musical numbers, which will be many and varied. Abie Bernstein, formerly with the Goldbergs on their radio hour, will add much to the numbers.

Speaker Is Named For Farm Banquet

Dr. W. I. Myers, former governor of the Farm Credit Administration and head of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Cornell University, will be a speaker at the annual Farm and Home Bureau and 4-H Club Association banquet on December 7 at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church in Kingston. The program starts with a turkey dinner followed by a program of entertainment.

Another feature of the banquet will be the first showing of the colored motion picture of the 1939 Apple Blossom Festival, taken and edited by Ralston Munson for the Ulster County Council.

This year is the 25th anniversary of the Ulster County Farm Bureau. Those who have been members continuously for 25 years will receive an appropriate pin at the banquet. The presentation will be made by Millard Davis, president of the association.

Reservations for the dinner must be made at the Farm and Home Bureau offices by December 4. Only those who have made reservations can be assured of accommodations. The excellent program and the anniversary celebration are expected to attract an unusually large crowd to this annual gathering.

ST. REMY

St. Remy, Nov. 21—Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Tuppering and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellsworth motored to Newburgh Sunday afternoon. While there they called on Mrs. George Gulick.

Friday evening the members of the Junior Leaders Class of the St. Remy Sunday School entertained their parents and friends with a Thanksgiving program and a playlet entitled "Caleb's Courtship". Characters were played by Misses Stevens and Adele Haylin as Martha Smith.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the St. Remy Fire Department is sponsoring a card party to be held at the Red Men's Hall November 30 at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

There will be special Thanksgiving service Thursday morning in the Bloomingdale Reformed Church at 10 o'clock to which all members of the St. Remy Church are invited.

Miss Evelyn McFeyre, Mrs. Hazel Murray and Mr. Landers of Springfield were Sunday callers at the Ellsworth home. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Van Aken of Bridgeport, Conn., were guests of Mrs. Lorenzo Tuppering and family Sunday.

The Ladies Missionary Society held its November meeting last week Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Tracy Van Vleet with Mrs. Van Vleet as assisting hostess. The topic of Japan was taken up. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Many a husband is dizzy from being wound around his wife's finger so often.

Teacher—More than 5,000 elephants go each year to make our piano keys.

Pupil—Really? Well, its remarkable what those beasts can be trained to do.

Among the things which modern humanity needs is a greater will to work.

The flight of time is a frequent topic of conversation.

The café advertised sudden service but they didn't give it.

A patron gave an order, waited patiently and fell asleep. He awoke to hear the waitress voice asking:

Waitress—Did you order this sundae?

Diner (in dismay)—Good lands! What day's this?

That's Thanksgiving
Pies of pumpkin, apple, mince, Jams and jellies, peach and quince; Purple grapes and apples red; Cakes and nuts, and gingerbread.

That's Thanksgiving!
Seaside Passenger, on friend's yacht—I say, what about going back? After you've seen one wave, you've seen them all.

Elevator Boy—Up or down, sir?
Incubate—I wish I knew.

A lot of people practice public speaking and don't even know it—over country telephone lines.

Recruit (as soldier's marched on to train)—Who are those people doing all the cheering?

Veteran—Those are the people who are not going.

Don't fool yourself, brother; girls who are easiest on the eyes are the hardest on the nerves.

Mistress—Marie, when you wait on the table Thanksgiving, please don't spill anything.

Maid—Don't worry ma'am; I never talk much.

Proclamations are not necessary to remind us that national and individual thanksgiving is our common privilege.

Their guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Georgia Freest, Miss Elizabeth Terry, Miss Mary Staples and Jay Terry of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Terry Staples of Sagerties and Campbell Staples of Nyack.

Lowell Club Meeting

Lowell Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. S. Conklin on Broadway. A paper on New York state was presented by Mrs. A. H. Van Buren, following a short roll call on the New York World's Fair. The club will meet December 5 with Mrs. Frederick Snyder at her home on Clinton avenue.

Sangaline-Nerone

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized by the Rev. George H. McWeeney on Sunday, November 14, in St. Colman's Church in East Kingston when Miss Emma Theresa Nerone, daughter of Mrs. Michael Nerone of Goldrick's Landing, became the bride of Donald Thomas Sangaline of Beacon, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sangaline, formerly of this city. The bride wore a gown of white satin with a veil of white tulle caught with lilies of the valley and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and swansons. She was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph Nerone. Miss Marie Sangaline, sister of the groom, acted as maid of honor, wore pink taffeta with peacock blue accessories. Miss Ruth Parslow and Miss Lucy DeMiccio, bridesmaids, wore peacock blue with pink accessories. All of the attendants carried pink roses.

Leo Nerone, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Ushers were Earl Williams and Victor Nerone. Master John Sangaline and Nancy Sangaline were the ring bearer and flower girl, the latter of whom wore blue taffeta with pink accessories and carried a basket of pink roses and baby's breath. A reception followed at the White Eagle Hall. After an extended tour of the southern states, the couple will reside in Beacon.

Junior Auxiliary to Meet

The Junior Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital will meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Leonard O'Reilly, 38 Pine Grove avenue, to elect officers and to make plans for the annual New Year's Day dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel. All members are urged to attend.

A VIVACIOUS TWO-PIECE STYLE

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9070

This young dress will be the "mainstay" of your mid-winter wardrobe. Marian Martin's Pattern 9070 is made in two separate pieces. Worn together as a suit, they give willowy, princess-like effect...worn separately they're good mixers with other members of your wardrobe. The skirt has six gores and a merry flare. There are no darts in the jacket—just easy-to-stitch, long seams for perfect fit. Cut the short sleeves straight or curve them and make either a prim little collar or a sweetheart neck. Because "anything goes" this season as far as color is concerned, why not make the top and skirt in bold contrast?

Pattern 9070 may be ordered only in junior and misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18, bust sizes 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. Size 14 requires 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTY CENTS in coins for the MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Fashion is at your finger-tips with a MARIAN MARTIN WINTER PATTERN BOOK in your hands! For your ten nimble fingers plus page after page of her easy patterns and up to sure style success. This book offers a fine selection of suits, dresses and coats, whether you're a career woman, socialite, housewife or co-ed. There are tailored, day and evening frocks, cheery home styles, youngster togs and gift ideas for everyone. BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS, PATTERN FIFTEEN CENTS, BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Send your order to Kingston Daily Freeman, Pattern Department, 282 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

Avoid These Slips when Dining
What chances a girl takes if she enters social life with just a sketchy knowledge of etiquette!

The girl in our picture is only at the hors d'oeuvres course of a formal dinner, but already she is licking her fingers and hugging her plate—to the dismay of her partner!

There are napkins for sticky fingers—but no reason for them to get sticky from hors d'oeuvres. This course is usually eaten with a fork, though the canapés served before a meal are taken with the fingers.

A clever girl would be up on these points—would avoid, too, such errors as plate hugging, bracing elbows on the table while sipping coffee. She would know it's incorrect to have arms or elbows on the table while eating.

And such a girl wouldn't be flustered at a smart buffet party. She would wait until her partner had his refreshments before starting to eat hers. At a restaurant she would let her escort give her order to the waiter.

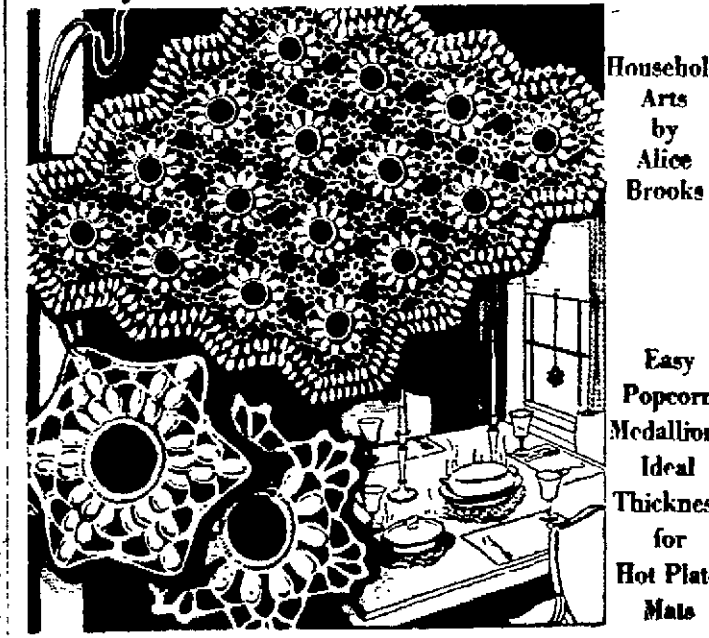

Turn your manners into a social asset. Our 32-page booklet gives the final points of table etiquette for formal and everyday usage. Tells how to eat unusual foods, what to do at teas, buffets, suppers, restaurants.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of GOOD TABLE MANNERS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 636 Smith Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Hibernian Ball

The Commodore Hotel at 42nd Street and Lexington avenue, Manhattan, will be the rendezvous of the largest gathering of Irish people ever to assemble under one roof when the Ancient Order of Hibernians of New York County hold their annual reception and ball on Friday evening, December 8. Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians from New Rochelle, Mt. Vernon, White Plains, Yonkers, Port Chester, Newburgh, Kingston, Peekskill, Poughkeepsie and other points north will be on hand to spend a pleasant evening.

They'll Form Shade Pulls Or Mats

Crocheted over bone rings, these easy popcorn medallions make dainty shade pulls, an effective inexpensive gift quickly made. A number of them joined form oval or round hot plate mats. The popcorns and the rings add thickness to protect your table. Pattern 6557 contains instructions for medallions; illustration of them and of stitches; photograph of medallions; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in coin to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Dreiser Knows There's No Philosophy Sans Women

Los Angeles, Nov. 22 (AP)—Author Theodore Dreiser, he of the tart comment, isn't even afraid of the ladies.

He proved it. He stood before 300 members of the Los Angeles Junior League and opined: "Women's clubs are baloney!"

"The Junior League is a women's club. Members gaped. "From an intellectual, social and economic angle, I say again that all women's clubs are baloney. There should be more to a woman's club than just planting graves and placing plaques."

He had something to say about higher education, too.

"You could close every university in the United States and it wouldn't make any difference. You can get a degree today on the most assinine subjects you ever heard of—most of the youngsters are sneaking and cheating their way through school. None of the schools is worth a dam—except the technical schools."

What, a hearer asked, is he doing at the moment?

"I am writing a book of philosophy."

"Darling," he retorted, "without women there would be no need for philosophy."

Mrs. Drewes Declares No Outsider Employed

Mrs. John Drewes, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 6, announced today that no outsider is promoting the concert by Stanley Hummel on December 6, sponsored by the P.T.A. of the school. Mrs. Drewes stated that it has come to her attention that someone has been contacting the public in behalf of the P.T.A.

Tickets are only being sold at Winter's Stationery Store, Rossi Music Store, Flanagan's, O'Reilly's on Broadway and the Morris-Hummel Conservatory.

Those serving on the ticket committee are Mrs. Charles Arnold, Mrs. Harry Halverson, Mrs. Albert Salzman, Mrs. Homer Emery, Miss Marion Gallagher, Mrs. Ralph Cooper, Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, Mrs. Clarence Wolfersteig, Mrs. Virginia Giesler and Mrs. Windrum. Any information of person or persons soliciting funds for the concert would be appreciated by the committee.

Parent-Teacher Ass'n

Lake Katrina P.T.A.

The regular meeting of the Lake Katrina P.T.A. was held at the school on Tuesday evening, November 14, at 8 o'clock, with the president, Mrs. Richard Van Ert, presiding. Mrs. Van Ert gave her report on the regional conference which was held in New York city on October 2 and 3.

The meeting was in charge of the Lake Katrina Home Bureau. Their chairman, Mrs. Edward Sanderford, of Mt. Marion, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Florence E. Lane, librarian of the New Paltz Normal School. Her topic was "The Value of Reading." Miss Lane's talk was greatly enjoyed. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Mack Havens, head of the kindergarten department of the New Paltz Normal School and a specialist in child literature, who had spoken to the children of the upper grades in the afternoon. Miss Havens talked on children's books and told stories that were of great interest to the children. She also exhibited toys from foreign countries.

Both afternoon and evening talks were in celebration of National Book Week, November 12 to 18, and in this connection an exhibit of current literature was shown by the local book clubs. Much interest was shown in this excellent exhibition.

School No. 5

The Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 5 held a card party at the school building on Wynkoop Place last Friday evening, November 17. The guests enjoyed both pinocle and bridge. All proceeds will be donated to social work of the association and to the school Christmas fund. The group are especially indebted to Brown's Florist for beautiful fern donated and also to Twin Beauty Salon. Refreshments were served.

Those arranging for the party were Mrs. Scholar, Mrs. Steuding, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Lowe, Mrs. Schwenk, Mrs. Clamer, Mrs. Leudtke, Mrs. Donovan, Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Ballard.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

Don't Make Him Teacher's Pet

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a school teacher, and the mother of one of the boys in my room sent me a beautiful house coat when school opened this fall. It's a lovely thing—much nicer than I could get for myself. But this is what worries me. Her son will be in my room again this year and he is very mischievous, and I am beginning to wonder if I should have felt that I can't be as strict with him as I should be. On the other hand, she is such a kind person that if I had returned it she would surely have been hurt. But since her husband is on the school board, this also adds to my doubt as to whether I should have kept the coat under the circumstances. Please tell me because I want to know what to do in the future should anything like this happen.

Answer: You can't return a gift sent you in kindness. You are right to keep the coat, but having done so you must be watchful not to favor the child more than the others. That she should want to do something for you is the most natural thing to understand. You are with her child so much of the day that it makes you seem very near to her. Any one who has ever had a child knows this.

The Chronic Late-Comer

Dear Mrs. Post: Some one has just told me something that I can hardly believe, and so I am coming to you to find out if it is really true. It's about women who keep men waiting. I find it happens all the time that a man and girl make a definite date; he goes to her house and is told she will be right down. And then he waits anywhere from 10 minutes to half an hour! I don't call this polite at any time—but when he has theatre tickets, I think it's inexcusable. My best girl tells me that it is done on purpose! She says that she was taught that it is correct to keep a man waiting—at least 10 or 15 minutes so that she won't seem too eager. Will you give me your opinion about this?

Answer: I can't imagine who taught her that rudeness is polite! I agree that if she were to sit out on the front steps looking up the street, she might be considered over-eager—but to be ready to come downstairs promptly is one of the very first exactions of good manners—at least in her own house. Even if she were meeting you downtown for lunch, she should be no more than one or at most two minutes late—unless she knows you are always late and gauges her time accordingly. The reason why she should be a minute late is that the man should be kept waiting for the girl—not she for him in any public place! (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

EMPIRE DINER
476 Broadway.

DOUBT fills the hearts of millions of men and women this week. In hundreds of thousands of homes bewildered Americans making plans for the dear familiar feast of Thanksgiving are asking themselves: Why? Why Thanksgiving? As human beings we would be callous to give thanks merely because we have been spared Europe's sufferings. That would not be Thanksgiving but smugness and complacency.

Should we give thanks then because our November skies are happily empty? Because our children play tag and football instead of digging air-raid shelters? Because our menfolk are safe with us on this day of days, secure at their own firesides? Because we have plenty on our tables?

Perhaps. All these things cannot fail to make us thankful.

But the spirit of Thanksgiving, the consecration of the holiday itself, is also, and perhaps primarily, one of obligation. Thanksgiving calls upon us to share. It teaches us on this day that no one should go hungry. There are many things we cannot share at this moment with our fellow human beings across the ocean. We cannot share our abundance or our security, our peaceful churches, or our serene and happy homes. These are, unfortunately, beyond our power to give.

But we in America must realize that, perhaps alone of all the peoples on the earth, we have something at this moment which an unhappy world will be desperately in need of sharing in the years to come when the guns are silent. And in giving thanks for the plenitude of these spiritual values which we possess, we must resolve anew to treasure and cherish them against that time.

We love peace. We love democracy. We believe the little man has a right to speak and be heard. Our sense of justice is as yet and forever, we hope, unclouded by passions. As a people we are generous. We hate the sight of suffering. We are strangely imbued with the belief that every man deserves well at the hands of every other man—a belief which seems to be sadly out of date in much of the world.

We know that there is much of injustice in the Old World, a great deal of which stems back through confused years to harsh treaties, in themselves seedbeds of hate. We know now to our sorrow that these hatreds cannot be resolved save by the sword. Yet we like to feel that it could have been otherwise and we dare to hope it can be otherwise again.

But we must do more than hope. The time will come when the calm counsels of America will be desperately needed to bring not only a just peace but a merciful peace so that the world may again and for all time turn its back on war.

And so, at this time, on Thanksgiving, it is not enough that we give thanks to the benevolent Providence that has spared us. In our hearts we pray that we may be permitted to hold fast to all those fruits of two thousand years of civilized endeavor: Peace, Democracy, Justice for all men and all nations. These things blossomed once in the western world. They will flower again, but only if we cherish the seeds, ready to cast them, when the time comes, on scarred and hungry soil.

Countess Is Given Credit for Having Reconciled Family

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Countess Barbara Haugwitz Reventlow, who herself has experienced two marital shipwrecks, was credited by friends today with effecting a reconciliation between her father and step-mother.

Barbara, with her 3½-year-old son, Lance, recently returned from Europe three days after her father, Franklin L. Hutton, advertised he was through paying bills for his wife, the former Irene Curley Bodde of Detroit.

Hutton then sought the seclusion of his Yonkers Island, South Carolina plantation. Barbara and her child remained here, frequently visiting her step-mother in the Hutton home.

Indication that these visits had a pacific purpose was seen when Hutton returned here yesterday and after a talk with Barbara, telephoned his estranged wife and sent her flowers. In a newspaper advertisement this morning he stated the notice published "over my name" a month ago was "in error."

"I hereby withdraw it," he added.

On his return, Hutton took an apartment near his wife's residence which was his own home until their estrangement.

Barbara, divorced in 1935 from the late Georgian Prince Alexis Mdivani and now seeking a Danish divorce from her second titled husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, is living in a nearby hotel. Another guest in the hotel is Robert Sweeney, young American who has been her steady escort for several months.

The first notice in the New York Herald-Tribune on October 18 said: "I am no longer responsible for the debts incurred by my wife, Irene C. Hutton, Franklin L. Hutton, 745 Fifth Avenue."

The same paper today printed this notice:

"The notice inserted over my name in this paper on October 18, 1939, was in error. I hereby withdraw it. Franklin L. Hutton, 745 Fifth Avenue."

Hutton, a stock broker, declined to discuss the notice other than to say it "speaks for itself."

His first wife, Edna Woodworth, daughter of the founder of the Woodworth store chain, died in 1917. He married the former Irene Curley Bodde, a Detroit divorcee, in 1926.

Russell Is Convicted
Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—A federal court jury convicted Jack Russell, 39, Oklahoma desperado, of kidnapping and killing William Scott Hamilton, 23, Arkansas city, Kan., salesman, and recommended the death penalty today. Russell fled from the Oklahoma state prison at McAlester, where he was serving 10 years for robbery, last July 11 and during the ensuing week kidnapped Hamilton near Pittsburg, Kas., and killed him, he admitted, near Ringwood, Ill., July 14. He was recaptured on a tourist camp near Cass, Ark., on July 18, just a week after his wild flight began for the purpose, he testified, of getting back to Chicago to see his wife, Mary, whose love he feared he was losing.

Stocks Sold Off Again on Tuesday

In the smallest full day's trading in several weeks, volume being 560,000 shares, stocks again sold off Tuesday, closing prices being at the lowest levels of the day. Industrials dropped .71 point, to 150.98 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails declined .51, to 33.57 and utilities lost .29, to 25.64. The action of the market, particularly with the Thanksgiving preview in the offing, was not considered of great significance.

In the commodity markets staples moved in narrow range and the commodity index was up fractionally for the day. Cotton futures declined, with old contracts closing off two to seven points. Wheat closed with advances of 1/4 to 1/2 cent a bushel. Rubber was one of the exceptions to the general trend, closing ten to 35 points higher in quiet trading. There was a ten-point reduction in the price of refined sugar, leading eastern refiners yesterday making a basis price of 4.80 cents a pound.

Because of the multiplicity of examinations by other bodies the New York Clearing House Association voted unanimously to discontinue its periodic examination of member banks. Chief Examiner Charles A. Hanna of the Clearing House department of inspection and examination, will retire December 31, along with one or two other members of the staff. Move will save member banks around $300,000 a year.

The consumption of lead in the U. S. during October was at the highest level for any month since 1929. There were consumer takings during the month of 66,060 tons.

Retail prices of Thom McAn shoes will be raised 15 cents a pair, to $3.50, effective December 1. C. O. R. R. yesterday declared a regular dividend on common of 62 1/2 cents and an extra of 50 cents. Kennecott Copper declared cash distribution of $1.25, bringing payments for the year to $2.82 against $1.75 in 1938. American Power & Light pays $1.80 on the $6 preferred and $1.50 on the $5 preferred on December 20 and also $1.12 1/2 and 94 1/2 cents respectively on the two stocks on January 2. Pennick & Ford declared dividend of 75 cents. Yale & Towne orders special of 15 cents on the $6 preferred and 10 cents on the $5 preferred on December 20 and also $1.12 1/2 and 94 1/2 cents respectively on the two stocks on January 2.

A report submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission shows that at the end of 1938 dividends were in arrears on 56 per cent of the preferred stock of public utility holding companies and 27 per cent of that of operating companies, in the hands of the public. A number of operating companies and some holding companies which should be able to clear up their arrears without recapitalization, the survey finds, but in many cases the arrears are due so great in relation to earnings that recapitalization in seen to be inevitable. Nine holding companies have arrears of more than $10,000,000 each.

Payment of 30 cents on common by American Radiator is the first since March, 1938.

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Woot

YESTERDAY: The keys to the poison cabinet were to be left with Duncan, testifies Mrs. Murchison. Duncan throws a bombshell by refusing to give evidence because this case is bound up with something else—the murder of his brother.

Chapter 40 Suicide?

MICHAEL shut the garage door that evening, and turned to go to the house. He heard a shout from behind him, and turned. Gordon was in his own yard, wrestling with his tent pole, which had evidently fallen down.

"Can you give me a hand, Mr. Forester?" he asked. "I'm in a bit of a mix up."

Michael vaulted lightly over the edge, and went up to the tent. Gordon crawled inside the collapsed canvas, and pushed up on the pole. Michael leaned over and aided at the canvas, which seemed to be caught together somewhere down below.

There was quite an opening in the canvas at the top of the pole. Gordon's face was just beneath it. "It's old Mrs. Devoe," he said in a low tone. "I think the old dame's gone crazy. She came home after the inquest yesterday, and went out for a walk all by herself. She never does not walking, you could tell that to look at her. She went all along the path in the woods, and she acted like she didn't hardly know what she was doing."

"What do you mean?" Michael asked.

"Oh, rubbing her hands together, and putting them over her face, and moaning every once in a while. I could hear her clear out in the brush where I was crawling along beside her. And after a while she just flopped down on her knees right there in the woods, and she had her hands over her face. And then she took them off and crossed herself. So I guess she was praying. She stayed there an awful long time. I got a cramp in my knee."

"And then?"

"Oh, she just got up and came on again. You know what I think?" Gordon's blue eyes shone eagerly through the aperture. "I think she knows he did it, and it's driving her crazy, 'cause she thinks they'll hang him."

"Gordon! I shall have to soak your head in a mixture of vinegar and goose grease if you . . . Oh, good evening, Mr. Deane."

"Good evening. Giving the boy hands?"

"Yes, I think he's got it now, haven't you, Gordon?"

"Yep. Get off the canvas so's I can pull it up, will you?"

"Gordon!" his father said sternly. "That is no way to speak to Mr. Forester."

There was no answer from beneath the canvas. Michael smiled. "It's not so easy to be polite when someone's stepping on your leg," he murmured. "I think that's what I was doing."

"Well, he's a very impolite child anyway. Very. Mr. Deane took off his glasses and polished them. The eyes beneath were small, with pupils the size of pin points. He peered at Michael, near-sightedly. "This is a horrible state of affairs, Mr. Forester," he said.

"It seems to be," Michael moved away from the canvas with the up-heaval taking place beneath it. Gordon crawled out and started tying down the ropes.

"What do you think of it?" Deane put on his glasses again and put his handkerchief away.

Michael kicked at a tent peg. "To tell you the truth, I am completely bewildered."

Trembling Hands

DEANE frowned. "I heard today that you were out here for the express purpose of investigating Dr. Murchison's disappearance," he said sharply. "I cannot understand why I was not informed of that. It is a great surprise, to put it mildly, to discover that one of my neighbors and colleagues has disappeared. That is what the police are working on the case. That in all probability he has been murdered, and that one is told nothing."

"There isn't very much to tell," Michael said apologetically.

"I gather that. What progress, may I ask, have you made on the case?"

"Almost none," Michael replied sadly. He looked away over the tops of the trees. "It's all very confusing. Their family affairs seem to be in a terrible state. A stranger finds great difficulty in understanding them."

"Do you think this disappearance of Dr. Murchison has come about through these family differences?" Michael looked straight at him. "What else can I think? You heard the evidence this afternoon."

"Yes," Mr. Deane cleared his throat nervously. "Yes, indeed. I feel sure that you are right. They are not a pleasant family. Dr. Murchison himself was a most objectionable person—most objectionable. He clenched and unclenched his hands. "Most objectionable," he repeated a gain. "Anyone would have found it irritating to live with him. I wonder that this contretemps did not arise sooner."

"Have you any definite suggestions to offer, Mr. Deane?"

He hesitated the merest second. His hands, Michael noticed, were shaking. What was it Jameson had said? "When he gets excited, his hands shake."

"I have," he said after a moment. "I should suggest that you question his wife closely—very closely. Ask her, for instance, where she was the night he disappeared."

"She has already said that she went to bed at half past ten."

"She has?" Then I should challenge that statement. I happen to know that she was not."

"Where was she, Mr. Deane?"

He pursed his lips. "I do not wish to make trouble for her, although if she has murdered her husband she must expect trouble."

His spoke of murder as if it were as ordinary as cooking a dinner.

"Yes, I will tell you—that night at midnight, I saw her getting into a car that stood over near the side of the men's residence."

"You do not know who was driving the car?"

"I do not. It looked like a taxi-cab."

"She was alone?"

"I cannot say. I doubt it. She is rarely . . . alone." There was subtle insult in his tone.

"How was she dressed?"

"She had on a long dark coat. That is all I can say."

Gordon emerged from the back of the tent. "I got it all done," he said gruffly.

"Have it all done," Deane said sharply. He swung on his heel. "You will not mention that I have given you this information, Mr. Forester. It was a command."

Michael did not reply. Deane said "Good-night," and walked with short, quick steps into the house.

Chapter 41 Return To Life

TUCK was sitting up in bed drinking the cocoa Bunny had just brought her. Michael, in dressing gown and slippers, was stalking restlessly about the room, and Bunny was perched on the foot of Tuck's bed, pale and quiet. Bunny was not talking a great deal these terrible days. There was so little to say that did not touch on the mystery; so little that did not remind her of Michael's warning. The world seemed rather a terrible, unfriendly, deceiving place.

"Michael," Tuck set down her cup and snuggled down into her pillows. "Michael, why did she do it?"

He did not answer for a minute. Then he turned and faced her, leaning over the foot of his own bed.

"You mean," he said slowly, "if she had done it, why would she have done it?"

Tuck gasped. "Murder?" she asked in a breathless whisper.

"Any observant person who has lived near Mrs. Devoe for a number of years would know she was left handed. Easiest thing in the world to drape that left hand around the knife in her heart."

"But the knife itself! It was her own, out of her handbag. Why should she have been carrying it?"

"I always have a penknife in my handbag," Bunny said in her low voice, after a minute. She was thinking it over.

"Yes. And the point is . . . the blade isn't over two inches long. Pretty hard to stab yourself with a blade two inches long. I should imagine."

"Will you tell me why she did it?" Tuck said after a minute or two. Her voice was very small and tired.

Michael drew a deep breath and straightened his shoulders. "I'll tell you a story," he said, "and you can draw your own conclusions."

"It's a story of the necklace," he went on. "I'll tell it briefly. It began in Williston, six years ago. At the time, a very wealthy woman had as her maid a pretty French girl whose name was Marie Duval. The girl . . ."

Tuck gasped weakly.

"The girl seemed thoroughly trustworthy, although she was much too fond of the men to please her mistress entirely. One of her particular admirers was the mistress' nephew who was at the time attending the University there. This second . . . and the two men did not know of each other, remember that—was another student, a younger fellow, to whom she paid little attention, although he seems to have been quite mad about her. I do not know the details of their acquaintanceship. The older chap had no prospects of inheriting money, although his aunt was wealthy, and if the younger had any money he kept it to himself for some time."

"It is possible that it did not seem important to him, since he was deeply interested in science and not in money or commerce."

"The mistress was rather a connoisseur of jewels, and so the maid handled many of them. It must have been a temptation to a nature such as hers; one realizes that. She finally succumbed to that temptation. However, she did not steal from her mistress; she took a diamond necklace which she was supposed to be returning to a shop. It was a week or two before the theft was discovered, the mistress and the jewels each thinking the other had the necklace. By this time the girl had repented of her action, and would have given up the jewels, perhaps, save that it meant a confession of what she had done. When the questioning began she was in an agony of apprehension, denying that she had not returned the jewels. This was obviously untrue, and drastic steps were about to be taken when she hid it. I saw her hide it. I saw her come in the store, and I saw him coming. I got down behind a counter quick. He never saw me at all. But I saw him, the devil! Dead! Not on your life, he isn't dead."

"Just a minute," said Michael quietly. "You're not doing yourself any good. You say you saw him yesterday. Are you sure you're not mistaken?"

"I am not. It's Murchison. I saw him plain."

"Describe him."

"Well—he looked just the same as ever except he had on a coat. One of them dusty looking raincoats it was, and a fawn hat. He's tall, dark, clean shaven, dark. What else is there?"

"You'd swear on the Bible that it was Edgar Murchison?"

"I would."

"What kind of a store?" Michael asked after a moment.

"A hardware store. I was buying a bit of tape to mend my crutch."

"What was he buying?"

"That's what I asked the clerk when he went out. I thought it might be a good idea. I was startled, caught Michael's eye, and controlled himself. "He was buying an ear-lock," he said.

YESTERDAY: Mr. Deane tells Michael that Mrs. Murchison was out with a man the evening Mrs. Murchison disappeared. Later that evening, Mrs. Devoe is found dead on the cliff.

Chapter 42 Blank Astonishment

"OF COURSE you know of whom I am speaking, Marie Duval married Edgar Murchison to save herself from prison. The unfortunate part of the matter," said Michael dryly, "was that she had already married Jared Devoe."

If he expected blank astonishment from his audience, he got it. Neither girl could speak.

Michael lit a cigarette. "So," he went on after a pause, "you get the situation. Marie is apparently still in love with her own husband. She engineered rather cleverly the business of getting him here into the city, through passing him off as her cousin. They are not unlike in appearance, although there is not the slightest relationship. He is quite mad about her too, I think, although he may be tiring of her just a bit. Still, those letters didn't sound as if he were, did they?"

"Letters?"

"In the box, honey. The warm, friendly ones. 'Michael Bruce Forester! How long have you known that?'"

"Oh, quite a while."

Bunny laughed suddenly. "I thought perhaps they were one of the unspeakable things Duncan was responsible for," she said.

"No," he blew a smoke ring. "So you see," he went on, "why Mrs. Devoe would have committed suicide if she had committed suicide. Which she didn't."

"What makes you so sure she didn't, Michael?"

"The same thing that explains why she might have. Her temperament and her religion. She was a very moody, serious minded, earnest Christian woman. She has been wringing her hands and praying for a long time now, worrying herself sick over the sins of her only child. But suicide in her eyes must have been a greater sin than all; she wouldn't pile one sin on another. No. But it must have been rather awful for her . . . for, you see," Michael said quietly, "she didn't know into what black depths Devoe and his wife had been led in order to conceal their relationship."

"Then, if it isn't suicide, Michael—why was she murdered? Because she knew too much? Like Miss Lissey? Old Mrs. Devoe? Is what you have told us the thing?"

Bunny's eyes widened.

Michael drew a deep breath. "That's a question I should like to be able to answer," he said deponently.

The inquest, followed so closely by old Mrs. Devoe's death, marked the end of the period of seeming inaction for Michael. He was away from home most of the time, on mysterious errands which he did not explain. One of these errands was in answer to a telephone call from the Veterans' Hospital—a call which asked him to come to the hospital immediately, as one of the patients wanted to see him.

As Michael knew it must be, it was Smith. He was pitifully thin and pale. As he came in he jumped up and gazed at them frantically. His eyes were burning with an insane light.

"It's you!" he choked out.

"Yes," Michael said cheerfully. "What can I do for you, old man?"

Chapter 44 With My Own Eyes

SMITH relaxed a little. He sank back into the pillows, but his hands still clawed nervously at the edge of the blankets. He looked at the doctor. "I got to talk to him alone," he said.

The doctor went out and shut the door quietly. Smith dropped his voice to an accusing whisper. "You said as how I didn't need to be afraid of him no longer," he said hoarsely. "You said as how he was gone away, and wouldn't never come back. You said as I was safe. Didn't you? Didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, you got that paper, ain't you? Can't you do something for me? Can't you get him locked up?"

"Locked up?" Michael repeated in amazement.

"He'll be hangin' around here in a day or two, like as not. Send in for me, that's what he'll be doin'. I won't go. I tell you, I won't go. Nothing on earth can make me go."

"Listen," said Michael tersely. "Act like a man, will you? You're acting like a damned rabbit."

Smith wiped the sweat from his face. "You ain't never been shell shocked," he mumbled.

"No. I don't know what it's like. But talk sense, anyway. I told you the other day you were safe. Safe as anything on God's earth could make you—from Murchison. He's dead, man."

Smith stared at him. His eyes were starting from his head. "Dead?" he whispered. "Dead! Didn't I see him with my own eyes no later than yesterday?"

"What?"

"It's true! I might have known that devil had you fooled. He's too smart. Dead! I was in a store, way on the other side of town. Unwittingly, I saw him go over there. He's dead, I tell you. I saw him. I saw him coming. I got down behind a counter quick. He never saw me at all. But I saw him, the devil! Dead! Not on your life, he isn't dead."

"Just a minute," said Michael quietly. "You're not doing yourself any good. You say you saw him yesterday. Are you sure you're not mistaken?"

Chapter 45 Elimination of grade crossings

Elimination of grade crossings in Kingston at an estimated cost of $4,375,500 will be considered during next year, it was announced today by the New York State Public Service Commission.

The local project which represents one of the highest estimated expenditures in the 1940 list is among 37 to be considered next year at a total estimated cost of $42,308,200.

Others among the larger projects are one for Niagara Falls at an estimated cost of $12,500,000; one for Saratoga Springs at $7,000,000 and another for Corning at $5,000,000.

Crossings listed for Kingston are those at Broadway, Ten Broeck, Smith, Foxhall and Flatbush avenues and Gage, Grand, Cornell, Downs and O'Neil streets.

People of the city, it is expected, will learn by the end of next year just what chance the local project has of meeting unanimous approval of the Public Service Commission and the railroad company.

Plans for the elimination recently revised passed a public hearing at the court house recently with no objections voiced. It is expected now that all procedures on getting the project started will be based on these revised plans, which call for eliminating the crossings listed by depressing the tracks.

The 1939 elimination program of the Commission included 47

Private Culver Ten Broeck at phone of battalion switchboard, 156th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, sending firing data to gun battery during the week-end maneuvers in the vicinity of Gardiner. Private Albert Nock reads the message as Captain Frederick L. Coombs, battalion communications officer, and Col Otto Thiede, Newburgh, regimental commander of the 156th F. A., stand by. The switch-board was set in a wooded section to furnish a camouflage for protection against an aerial attack that might be set upon it in wartime. The communications division is one of the most important units in conducting artillery fire.

Lieut. Harold V. Clayton, battalion plans and training officer, supervises as Private Charles R. Cole and Private John Meagher record figures for firing data during the maneuvers of the 156th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, in the week-end training program near Gardiner. They are working from battalion command post furnishing data to three firing batteries in the field.

State Lists Local Crossing Projects On 1940's Program

Elimination of grade crossings in Kingston at an estimated cost of $4,375,500 will be considered during next year, it was announced today by the New York State Public Service Commission.

The local project which represents one of the highest estimated expenditures in the 1940 list is among 37 to be considered next year at a total estimated cost of $42,308,200.

It is expected now that all procedures on getting the project started will be based on these revised plans, which call for eliminating the crossings listed by depressing the tracks.

The 1939 elimination program of the Commission included 47 projects for consideration which would cost about $43,000,000. Of this number 14 projects estimated to cost $30,000,000 were carried over from the 1938 program. During 1938 the Commission disposed of 10 projects involving the elimination of crossings estimated to cost about $1,000,000. This leaves 37 projects involving elimination work estimated at more than $42,000,000 upon which determinations have not yet been made.

The Commission has continued for consideration on its 1940 program the grade crossing projects which still remain on the program considered in 1939 but upon which no decision was reached. Because of the large expenditures which the proposed elimination of these crossings would involve additional projects were not added to the program to be considered next year.

In addition to considering its regular program of grade crossing elimination this year, the Commission reopened proceedings in 80 separate cases amounting to $32,000,000 and made revised or amendatory orders in 59 of these cases involving expenditure of about $22,000,000.

The reopening of these proceedings was made necessary by the Grade Crossing Elimination Act by the railroad companies and the cost of elimination projects, and the entire cost is placed upon the state, except that the railroad companies can be charged for any benefits they receive from the eliminations up to not more than 15 per cent of the total cost of the project.

PORT EWEN

Ladies' Auxiliary Meets

Port Ewen, Nov. 22—On Monday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Port Ewen Fire Co. held its annual meeting in the fire house with 34 members responding to roll call. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Edward Malnes; vice president, Mrs. Lou Schultz; secretary, Mrs. Florence Gurnea; treasurer, Miss Lucy Conighy. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Robert Henry, Miss Helen Schryver and Mrs. John Hines.

Village Notes

Port Ewen, Nov. 22—The Priscilla Society will hold a clam chowder sale at the Methodist Church House Friday, December 1. Chowder will be ready at 11 a. m. and customers are requested to bring their own containers. Orders may be telephoned to Mrs. Arthur Fowler, 1789 R. or Mrs. Alan Short, 3039-M.

The Men's Community Club will play dartball Friday evening at Glenford. Cars will leave the Reformed Church House at 7:30 o'clock.

The post office will be open from 7 to 9 a. m. and the lobby until 5 p. m. tomorrow due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

There will be a union Thanksgiving service tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Reformed Church.

Sick Plant Pills Will Be Big Boom To U. S. Farmers

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Pills for sick plants are a new prospect for agriculture.

A medicine which in the laboratory cuts stem rust of wheat from 90 down to 20 per cent is reported in the plant journal Phytopathology, by Helen Hart and J. Lewis Allison of University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Drugs to cure commercially important crop diseases have been sought many years with little success. Why plants do not respond like humans is an interesting scientific puzzle.

For one thing, plants have no circulatory system, other than a series of pipes carrying water up from roots to leaves. Another is ability of roots to exclude many substances. A third is the probability that a medical compound must break into its chemical parts before it can enter roots. Finally there is the problem of finding a chemical which will not harm the plant.

This is what the St. Paul scientists appear to have accomplished. Rust is caused by a parasite, making it a disease comparable with human infections.

The medicine for it is toluene-sulfonamide. It is not related to the war explosive suggested by the first half of the name, nor to sulfanilamide, the human miracle drug, which is spelled almost like the last part. The compound is one of the early stages of saccharine, the sugar 100 times sweeter than cane.

The St. Paul treatment suggests that plant doctors may be able to scatter pills on the ground. The drug was mixed in quartz sand and scattered on the soil of laboratory plants, where watering dissolved it into the ground.

There are many plants which suffer from rusts, and the report says that while it may not be easy, or even practicable, to devise economical treatment for field crops, there are good prospects for treating some of the ornamental plants of greenhouses and nurseries.

"Hit and run, in reverse," was the way Butte, Mont., police labeled the accident report Bert Goslin, Jr., told the officers a pedestrian walked into the side of his car, and injured his eye. Goslin rushed him to a hospital and ran inside for assistance in carrying the patient to the examination room. When Goslin returned with a stretcher carrier the victim had fled.

when the Methodist and Reformed Churches will unite in their annual Thanksgiving worship. There will be special music by the Reformed Church choir. The Rev. Frank W. Coutant of the Methodist Church will bring the message.

Colonials Ready for Jersey
Attack at Auditorium—
Fight Is on for League
Lead

When the Jersey Reds come to the Municipal Auditorium, Thanksgiving night, they'll bring two of the 10 leading scorers of the American League.

This means that the Colonials will have to be in the game every minute to carry on their fight for first place in the loop, the same goal sought by the Reds themselves.

Right now the Colonials, Reds and Philadelphia are tied with 667 percentages, but the Spahns are considered the leaders because they've played six games to three for the other two clubs.

Eddie Gottlieb's boys from the Quaker City have won four and lost two and the Reds and Colonials have won two each and dropped one.

The two sharpshooters coming with the Reds for the holiday dual at the auditorium are Moe Spahn and Goldstein. Moe has run up 29 points in three games, and Goldie 28 in the same number. Chuck Reiser of the Colonials is tied with Goldstein.

"I'm expecting a rough tussle as far as the Gashouse-Gang is concerned," said Manager Barney Sedran of the Kingston Club, "but my boys will be ready for any sort of attack."

Sedran has been working his crew over-time to have them in shape, and he has been drilling on plays he knows will give Muggsy Miller's tossers the most trouble.

However, Miller hasn't been asleep and is ready to give the Colonials plenty to shoot at.

Jersey will line up with a quintet picked from Schneiderman, Spahn, Goldstein, Jarmin, Anderson, O'Brien, Rosenfeldt, Marty and Benson.

Barney Sedran hasn't announced his starters, but will have all of his regulars ready—Berenson, Johnson, Fleigel, Fitzpatrick, Reiser, Murphy, Kramer and Sammy Kaplan.

These two sets of cagers are expected to furnish the fans with plenty of thrills for the Turkey night game from the first whistle at 9.15 until the end of the game.

Matty Begovich probably will be the referee, but it is not definite yet about the whistle man.

The official list of leading scorers, sent out by President John J. O'Brien, shows Phil Rabin of the Spahns, formerly of Kingston and the Reds, leading the pack with 60 points for six games. Two of his teammates, Lautman and Rosan, are next in line.

The official standing of the clubs, schedule for the week and list of 10 leading scorers follows:

Standings

Club	Won	Lost	Pct.
Spahns	4	2	.667
Reds	2	1	.667
Colonials	2	1	.667
Jewels	2	2	.500

Results

The Philadelphia Spahns, Jersey Reds and Kingston Colonials are tied for first place in the American Basketball League race. Philadelphia defeated Wilkes-Barre and broke even with the Jersey Reds during the past week, while Kingston defeated the New York Jewels, who also lost at home to Baltimore. Wilkes-Barre showed great form in defeating both Troy and Baltimore on the road.

'Pep' Meeting For Kingston High

To touch off the fireworks which will occur in tomorrow's important Kingston-Newburgh football tussle the students and followers of the Maroon and White team will hold one of their largest "pep" meetings tonight.

A parade, speeches and a bon-fire are listed. Starting at 7 o'clock from the school the students will march up Broadway to Clinton avenue and then to the Municipal Stadium.

Speakers will comment on tomorrow's game. All students and fans of the high school football team are urged to attend tonight's celebration. The high school band will be on hand to play.

Clinton Win 2

Clinton Avenue softball team took two games from Fair Street last evening at Epworth Hall. Fair Street won the first game 12 to 8 and Clinton Avenue took the second 8 to 6 and the last 9 to 8.
